SEACS 2021 Keynote Address: Annette Saunooke Clapsaddle 15

Plenary Session on Annette Saunooke Clapsaddle’s Even as We Breathe 16

SEACS Business Meeting 16
Welcome to the
2nd Annual SEACS Conference

On behalf of the organizing committee, it is my pleasure to welcome you to the second annual conference for the Southeastern Association of Cultural Studies (SEACS) and the first ever virtual conference for SEACS hosted by UNC Charlotte. The officers hope that you enjoy this virtual format and that sharing your research virtually with colleagues is a rewarding experience.

The Southeastern Association of Cultural Studies, SEACS (www.theseacs.org), is an organization dedicated to connecting and learning from colleagues dedicated to scholarship in Cultural Studies, Literatures, World Languages, Linguistics, and Pedagogy. As a regional organization with an international scope, SEACS holds annual meetings in the southeast region of the US that draws participants from the area and beyond. SEACS is a regional, non-profit organization that promotes scholarly exploration in a collegial spirit. SEACS is an organization that is dedicated to maintaining a supportive community of educators, scholars, and graduate students as well as to providing early professionalization opportunities for advanced undergraduate students.

As always, this organization and annual conference are not possible without members and supporters like you. Thank you for being a part of SEACS as we endeavor to go virtual this year. This has been a difficult year for myriad reasons and SEACS officers extend their gratitude to each of you for making time and space to connect with colleagues virtually this year at SEACS. We hope to see you in person next year.

Melissa Birkhofer
SEACS President, 2020-2021
Instructor, Department of English
Director of US Latinx Studies Program
Western Carolina University
Acknowledgments and Appreciations

Members and officers of SEACS would like to extend our thanks to Annette Saunooke Clapsaddle, award-winning Eastern Band Cherokee author of Even As We Breathe, for her keynote address.

Many thanks to the SEACS Officers for their vital work on the program and conference planning:

- Paul Worley  First Vice President
- Jason Huber  Second Vice President
- Kristin Kiely  Secretary/Treasurer
- Paul Worley  Journal Editor
- Anabel Aliaga-Buchenau  Local and Technical Arrangements
- Julia Geaney-Moore  Technical Arrangements

Thanks to the faculty, staff, and students of the Department of Languages and Culture Studies at the University of North Carolina at Charlotte for their support.

SEACS Journal: Convergences
